THE PROPER PLACE.

Where the Seat of Government of the Nation Should Be-Practical Reasons Why it should be Moved

The Davenport Tribune of yesterday ontains a lengthy article on the subject the removal of the national capitol from the Potomac to the Mississippi, why the change is desirable. The of the year, and as good in summer, fall Argus, as its readers know, has alluded very extensively to this matter on many occasions, but the Tribune says:

To many, the idea of removing the capital at all, was at first absurd, and therefore ridiculed. But after they began to reflect, next came, "why not?" And then, if it be removed, why not before all other localities, to Davenport, or the Rock Island locality, where there are three thriving cities within a radius of as many miles, in one of the healthiest as well as most beautiful localities in the west or in the whole country, and the great Rock Island arsenal planted on an island between them, owned by the government, with its many unoccupied acres upon which could be erected many department buildings? The ridicule expected came only to a small extent, but is so over-balanced by the serious attention it has drawn to the subject itself, of a removal of the national capital to some more central point, say on the banks of the Mississippi river, whether at Dave poort or not, that the Tribune feels the suggestion was good, and not one to be laughed away or laughed down however much it may be opposed. The fact simply is, and Gen. Schofield on a recent visit here admitted it, that when the west determines the national capital shall be removed to a central locality, and is solid or united in designating the point, the capital will be removed. Four new states will be added to the strength of the west in a few months, and a fifth, Wyoming, must soon follow. With the great preponderance of legislative power belonging to the west, and the population and wealth and enterprise thus represented in congress, the west will not many years longer consent to the national capital remaining where it is, in and startling proof ever before known. the extreme east. The question of its removal was several times agitated when the west was weak in all the elements of it was, but not now. The Peoria Transcript, in referring to this revival of the subject, says that many years ago the claims of Nauvoo, Ill., on the Miss ssippi, were strongly urged, and with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and very good reasons given why the removal should be made. Afterwards, the question again came up, and Dr. Beardsley, of Burlington, in the Iowa legislature, advocated the removal to Keokuk. IT REMOVED THE PIMPLES. ROUND MOUNTAIN, Tex., March 29, '87 A lady friend of mine has for several years been troubled with bumps and pimples on her face and neck, for which she used various cosmetics in order to remove them and beautify and improve her complexion, but these local applications were only temporary and left her skin in a worse condition.

I recommended an internal preparation -known as Botanic Balm-which I have been using and selling about two years she used three bottles and nearly all pimples have disappeared, her skin is soft and smooth and her general health much improved. She expresses herself
